NCAFC

national campaign against fees & cuts

My name is Rosie Huzzard. I am student of trade union studies at Sheffield College, I work in Jobcentre Plus, and I have been a PCS rep and trade union activist for three years. Before that I was a member of the Birmingham University Women's Committee and sat on the Guild Council. I'm a socialist-feminist, an internationalist, a supporter of the National Campaign Against Fees and Cuts, and a member of the group Workers' Liberty.

I'm standing because I want to see NUS reach out to the people whom I study alongside and who I represent in my trade union work – FE students and working-class people who are at the sharp end of exploitation and government attacks, and the most in need of an organising union.

I'm an experienced organiser, in the workers' movement and in the student movement. I regularly negotiate with management, and am currently organising minimum wage cleaners in my workplace to gain union rights. I'm also a Union Learning Rep and am organising ESOL education for members in my workplace. I know that success isn't measured by how many cosy meetings with ministers or white-wine policy receptions the national union's leaders attend – but by how many people are organised and mobilised to defend themselves.

I want a union that takes an activist, grassroots approach to helping FE students get organised.

FOR A SOCIALIST-FEMINIST NUS
